TPSA is registered with the Charity Commissioners as Number 1095734

Would you like more information? REMEMBER you are not alone.

As an organisation TPSA is committed to:

- Provide education and information about Prostate Cancer and raise awareness of the disease.
- Help to support men and their families whose lives have been touched by Prostate Cancer.
- Produce an informative newsletter, and website signposting people to various support facilities.

If you just want some general information then visiting our website and using some of the signposting links could be just what you are looking for.

If you have recently been diagnosed with Prostate cancer, had a recurrence, or are a partner, we are able to support you in a number of ways.

At the time of diagnosis the medical professionals will explain the range of options, including treatments and their potential side effects. Understandably you may experience a range of emotions, including Fear, Panic and Anger. All of this at a time when you are being asked to make critical decisions. We will try to put you in touch with someone (or signpost you to an organisation) who has been in a similar position to yourself so you can ask them questions and they will talk you through their experience with side effects, recoveries etc etc.

Please do visit our website and see how we can support you.
